At BioQuébec, we are committed to supporting Québec's life sciences ecosystem by connecting our members not only with industry peers, research partners, and opportunities, but also with the right strategic resources to accelerate innovation and growth. That is why we have partnered with Ayming, a global consulting firm with nearly 40 years of experience helping innovative organizations unlock growth through government incentives, non-dilutive financing strategies, and financial optimization.

Life sciences innovation depends on strong financial performance to sustain R&D, scale operations, and bring breakthrough solutions to market. Ayming helps take that one step further by uncovering funding solutions that unlock capital, improve cash flow, and reduce tax burdens, without giving up equity. Their team secures millions of dollars annually for companies across Canada through federal and Québec grants, R&D tax credits, and other incentive programs that protect margins and fuel innovation.

Together, BioQuébec and Ayming support member success across the life sciences value chain, whether advancing biotech and medtech R&D, scaling manufacturing, commercializing health technologies, or driving pharmaceutical innovation.

How Ayming Supports BioQuébec Members

- Identify missed funding opportunities by uncovering eligible projects and costs often overlooked.
